ABSTRACT

This guide to sources for students at San Diego State University doing library research in topics related to American Indian Studies begins by noting that information on North American Indians can be found in a variety of subject disciplines including history, anthropology, education, sociology, health care, law, business, and politics. The sources listed are annotated, and include bibliographies, monographs, periodicals, newspapers, government publications, microform collections, and the university archives. Information is also provided on interlibrary loan, the San Diego State University Library, and the University's American Indian Studies Department. Appendixes contain a list of periodicals, maps showing the distribution of Indian tribes in California and in the Southwest, and statistics for Indian populations living on reservations in Southern California. American Indian Studies is an academic department within the College of Arts and Letters. The Department serves all students, providing a wide spectrum of courses dealing with the history, government, culture, and literature of American Indians. We offer a minor in American Indian Studies and several of our courses meet University General Education curriculum requirements. Students are encouraged to join the North American Indian Student Alliance, an association recognized by the Associated Students of SDSU. The students, staff, and faculty of the Department of American Indian Studies work closely to further knowledge of and the educational opportunities for American Indians.

Student Activities

Since 1970 the North American Indian Student Alliance (NAISA) has sponsored activities which bring together people who are interested in the rich cultural heritage of America's native peoples. Working with the American Indian Studies staff and faculty and with the regional American Indian community, the students plan and sponsor activities which enhance educational programs of SDSU, including American Indian Culture Week, sponsored each spring. Public lectures, exhibits, and photo displays are offered.

SDSU's American Indian Pow Wow

American Indian Culture Week concludes with the annual pow wow, in the Spring semester, which features inter-tribal music and dances. Indians from many parts of North America participate in the events, many displaying their arts and crafts.

Courses and Minor

The Department of American Indian Studies offers courses on a variety of subjects. A minor in American Indian Studies consists of a minimum of 15 units, 9 of which must include upper division courses. A minor in American Indian Studies enables students, with majors in history, political science, sociology, public health, law, business, and many other fields to broaden their education while at the same time focusing it on America's first people. The minor will enhance one's education and help students face post graduate work.

Classes in American Indian Studies include: (General Education) American Indian Heritage, American Indians in Contemporary Society, American Indian Literature, American Indian Music, American Indian Poetry and Fiction, American Indian History, and Roots of Indian Traditions. Other courses fulfilling the minor include American Indian Art, Experimental Topics, Political Experience, Bureaucracy, Indian Education, Indian People of California, Indians of the Plains, Community Organization and Development, Topics and Special Studies in American Indian Studies. A Complete listing may be found in the SDSU General Catalog.

Publications in American Indian Studies

The American Indian Studies Department is dedicated to providing students and the public with high quality information regarding the cultural heritage of American Indians. To this end, the Department publishes limited, refereed editions of scholarly works designed to educate and enlighten the interested public and the Indian community. Many of these publications are in the University Library.

The SDSU Library

The University Library contains over 928,000 volumes, as well as hundreds of thousands of government publications, microforms, maps, and other materials. The Library receives almost 10,000 periodical and serial titles, and is a depository for U.S., California, and United Nations publications.

Librarians provide reference assistance from 3 points: The General Reference Desk (2nd floor), which covers the subject fields of business, the social sciences, humanities and education; The Science Reference Desk (5th floor), which covers all the science, medical, and technology fields; and the Government Publications reference desk (3rd floor), which assists users of materials in that collection.

The Periodicals are located on the 1st floor (ground floor) for the subject fields of the social sciences, humanities, business, or education. The periodicals for the science, medical, and technology fields are located on the 5th floor.

SOURCES OF BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The handbooks, encyclopedias, and biographical dictionaries listed below are reference books which may be useful when beginning your research, or for finding specific, factual information. They are also useful for choosing a topic and reading some background on your topic.

BOOKS

The Card Catalog in the General Reference Room (2nd or main floor) lists books by Author/Title in one section, and by Subject in another section. When looking for a subject, use the Library of Congress Subject Headings (3 large, red-covered volumes near the Subject catalog). These volumes let you know what the correct subject headings are for your topic in the Subject Card Catalog. Some examples of subject headings are the following:

Cahuilla Indians
Cherokee Indians
Cupeno Indians
Dakota Indians
Dieguenos Indians
Luiseno Indians

Indians of North America--California
Indians of North America--Culture
Indians of North America--Government Relations
Indians of North America--History

Once you find your subject in the card catalog, write down the call numbers for the books you want. For example:

78
C15
C29

California Indians. N.Y.: Garland Publishing, Inc., 1974.

The call number is E 78 C15 C29.

The books are located on floors, 3, 4, and 5, according to the FIRST letter of the call number, as in this chart:

Book Locations by First Letter of Call Number

A-H	3rd floor
J-P	4th floor
Q-Z	5th floor

Therefore, books beginning with 'E' are on the 3rd floor. We have open stacks, so you go get the books, and take them to the Circulation Desk on the Main floor if you want to check them out. Use your validated student I.D. card to check books out for 4 weeks. (There is no limit on the number of books you can check out but fines are 25 cents per day, per book, if overdue.)

Note: Government Publications must be checked out from the Government Publications desk on the 3rd floor. Periodicals cannot be checked out.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES

Bibliographies list materials published on a particular topic or in a particular field. They are useful to researchers since the compiler has pulled together many references on the topic. Some bibliographies are annotated with descriptions or evaluations of each item. Periodical indexes and abstracts are useful for updating bibliographies. Check the Subject Card Catalog for your topic with the subheading "bibliography" e.g. (Cherokee Indians--Bibliography). The bibliographies listed below are important ones located in the General Reference stacks.

The author attempts to supplement existing bibliographies with useful materials written on Indians after 1875. Arranged into topical categories (e.g., City Living; Formal Education) with study guide material to direct the student in reading and learning.

A series of short but useful critical bibliographies were produced by the Newberry Library Center for the History of the American Indian. They have different authors and call numbers, and were published in the late 1970's by Indian University Press, at Bloomington. They are listed below in call number order, and shelved in the General Reference Stacks.

PERIODICALS

Periodicals (magazines and journals) provide recent articles on specific topics with a diversity of viewpoints. Periodicals are located on the 1st floor of the Library (and on the 5th floor for Science periodicals) and are shelved in call number order. Appendix I lists some periodicals specifically for American Indian Studies, which may be browsed through for current articles. However, articles on topics in American Indian Studies can be found in a wide variety of periodicals in anthropology, history, law, public affairs, education, art and other fields. The periodical indexes are located on the 2nd floor in the General Reference Room (and on the 5th floor for Science periodicals) and this is where you should start your library research. A reference liberian will advise you on which periodical indexes are best for your specific topic. And, many periodical indexes are also available as computer databases, which can be accessed in the library. A reference librarian can tell you more about this service.

Some of the most important periodical indexes for topics in American Indian Studies are described below:

NEWSPAPERS

Newspapers provide a variety of viewpoints on current topics, such as bingo on reservations or water rights issues. In the General Reference room there are indexes for the major newspapers, such as the New York Times, Washington Post, and Los Angeles Times located on Table 9. Other useful sources are listed below.

National Newspaper Index. (Belmont, CA: Information Access company)
This microfilm reader indexes the latest 3 years of the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Christian Science Monitor, Los Angeles Times, and Washington Post. Updated monthly.

Newsbank (New Canaan, CT: Newsbank, Inc.)
Available as a CD-ROM computer index, and as printed indexes (Table 9), this covers hundreds of newspapers around the U.S. A major resource for finding newspaper articles on your topic. The articles themselves are reproduced onto microfiche in a special collection in the Microforms and Newspaper Center (1st floor).

Pamphlet Files
The General Reference Division maintains files of newspaper clippings and pamphlets on many topics. The Pamphlet Files consist of three major divisions; San Diego, California, and United States. For each section there are subject card files. Especially useful are the newspaper clippings in the San Diego files on local Indian tribes and activities.

DataTimes
A computer database in Oklahoma City, offering full-text of the San Diego Union newspaper from 1984-present. A reference librarian can access this for you, which costs you 85 cents/minute to search. The average cost for a search is less than $20.00.

San Diego Reader KWIC Index (October 1972-December 1987)
UCSD creates this index to the Reader, which indexes key words in titles of articles. Good for local information. Located on Table 9 in the General Reference Room.

U.S. GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

Many government departments and agencies publish reports on American Indians. Among these are the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Smithsonian Institution, and the Bureau of American Ethnology (historical). The original documents, treaties, census materials, congressional reports and hearings, and other valuable primary-source materials are available for your research.

There are separate catalogs and indexes for government publications, as well as a different call number system called the Superintendent of Documents Classification, which arranges materials by agency. The librarians at the Government Publications reference desk on the 3rd floor will assist you in using the indexes and locating the materials you need.

The following indexes to government publications can be used to check your subject:

Special Microform Collections

Important primary-source materials, such as field notes, letters, personal papers, and transcripts of interviews, are often reproduced on microfiche or microfilm. Usually, the advanced researcher is interested in these detailed materials, but undergraduate students may also find many of these materials useful. The following are some of the most important microform collections in our library on American Indian Studies topics.

Microforms & Newspaper Center

H.R.A.F. (Human Relations Area Files).

This microfiche collection is very important for locating significant periodical articles, field notes, dissertations and other materials on many American Indian tribes and cultures. Use the two printed guides to the collection: Outline of World Cultures, and Outline of Cultural Materials. The H.R.A.F. Source Bibliography is a listing of all the materials used in the H.R.A.F.files.

F-3416

The Papers of John Peabody Harrington in the Smithsonian Institution 1907-1957. (Parts 1 and 2)

101 reels of microfilm make up this important collection of papers and field notes of this unrelenting anthropologist, ethnologist, linguist, and field worker, pertaining to the history, language, and culture of native Americans, especially California Indians. Printed Guide and Reel Guide provided.

F-3601

The Papers of Carlos Montezuma, M.D.

9 rolls of microfilm record the papers of this Yavapai Indian (1867-1923) who was a leading crusader for Native American rights. Printed Guide and Index available.

C-1832

Duke Indian Oral History Collection

From 1967-1972, Miss Doris Duke supported this large project, where Indians talked about their views and heritage. The transcripts are re-produced onto 310 microfiche.

F-1349 University of South Dakota American Indian Oral History Collection. (Part 1)

C-1844 University of South Dakota American Indian Oral History Collection (Part 2)

Interviews with American Indians and people knowledgeable about American Indians were made between 1967-1973. The typed transcripts were published on microform. These first-person views of Indian life, traditions and culture provide a unique perspective of Indian history.

UNIVERSITY ARCHIVES

Located in the Department of Special Collections of the University Library, the University Archives contains the papers of John C. Rouillard, former Chair of the American Indian Studies Department, as well as the files of the department. Included are papers of the California Indian Education Association, the National Indian Education Association and the National Advisory Council of Indian Education. (NACIE). Information, correspondence, and proposals regarding development of the department and faculty, budgets, grants, symposia, and student enrollment and activities are found here and open to the public.

INTERLIBRARY LOAN

Library, Room 208
594-6730

This office will obtain books, periodical articles, or other materials for you that are not in our library. Materials are requested from other libraries, such as UCLA, Berkeley, UCSD, and other California State Universities. Usually, there is no charge for this service, but allow one or two weeks to receive the material.
